JACK JOHNSON

Soft-rockin' surfer Jack Johnson has returned to the spotlight with a brand-new batch of chilled-out grooves that entices listeners to lie back and think of sun-kissed summers. To The Sea may steadfastly follow Johnson's tried-and-true formula, but his signature blend of strummy guitar and heartfelt lyrics has won fans for a reason. From radio hit "You and Your Heart" to the soulful "My Little Girl", this album's packed with toe-tappy, singalong songs that take listeners to their happy place.

Environmental crusader Johnson's eco-friendly passions only add to his intergenerational appeal: To The Sea was recorded in his solar-powered studios and packaged using recycled paper. Currently riding the wave on a world tour that aims to be zero waste, he'll touch down in New Zealand in late November.

Miranda Lambert

True to its name Revolution, the third album from country singer/songwriter Miranda Lambert, is a bit of a turnaround from her previous outings. While the first two albums featured angry tunes about getting revenge on bad boyfriends (guitar in one arm, shotgun in the other), Revolution is softer and more mature, and shows off her beautiful voice.

Sex and the City 2

Much like Carrie Bradshaw's wardrobe, there's a lot of mixing and matching of contemporary and classic in the soundtrack to Sex and the City 2. There's a refreshing urbanisation of the Blondie anthem "Rapture" performed by Alicia Keys, and Liza Minnelli gives Beyoncé's "Single Ladies" her Broadway best. The track "Can't Touch It" by Australia's Ricki-Lee Coulter is also a standout, with enough sass to impress the likes of Samantha Jones.

SPOTLIGHT: PIXIES

When Charles Thompson dropped out of college in the late 80s, he gave himself two choices: either go to New Zealand to see Halley's Comet or form a band. Thompson chose the latter and adopted the stage name Black Francis to become the frontman of the pioneer alternative band, Pixies. Earlier this year Francis and the rest of the band did make it to New Zealand to perform in two sell-out concerts, which celebrated the 20th anniversary of their popular album Doolittle. We have all four Pixies albums on board, plus an album of B-sides.

FEATURED TITLE

The Phoenix Foundation

It's been three years since Wellington band The Phoenix Foundation's last offering, and they've clearly put the time to good use. With various solo albums behind them, as well as soundtracks for acclaimed Kiwi films Separation City and Boy, the sextet is back with Buffalo, and the record's 10 tracks have hit written all over them. Swirling patchouli-scented melodies are interspersed with dance-off worthy grooves, with sweeping harmonies and clap-happy pop songs thrown in for good measure. Locals will love "Eventually", a shout-out to the band's home town on which frontman Sam Scott sings of scones, scarves and excursions up Mt Victoria.

Buffalo's one for indie music fans and easy-listening lovers alike. With two tracks ("Buffalo" and "Flock of Hearts") nominated for Silver Scroll awards, there's every indication it'll become a firm favourite on iPods everywhere.
